

Chemlogic is a logic program for computer chemistry that performs stoichiometric calculations, balances and completes equations, and converts between formulas and names. The program has applications in education, particularly as a study tool. Features are implemented using a chemical information database, linear equation solver, and grammatical rules. Guidance is provided for resolving errors in user input. Chemlogic is available on Android and the Web.

